

Are you a veterinarian with strong technical expertise and a passion for sales-driven success in the cattle industry?

To strengthen our Hungarian team, we are looking for an ambitious and results-oriented

CATTLE TECHNICAL MANAGER

This role combines high-level technical knowledge with commercial impact, offering the opportunity to work directly with leading European manufacturers and key industry players worldwide.

Key Responsibilities:

- Act as a technical and commercial ambassador for cattle health and production solutions
- Support sales growth through technical expertise and customer engagement
- Deliver impactful technical training to sales teams, distributors, and clients
- Build strong relationships with veterinarians, farmers, and industry stakeholders
- Represent the company at international veterinary expos, conferences, and trade fairs
- Collaborate closely with established European manufacturers to support product positioning and market development

Requirements:

- Doctor of Veterinary Medicine (DVM) degree
- Fluent English (spoken and written)
- Strong technical background in cattle health, nutrition, or production
- Sales-oriented mindset with excellent communication and presentation skills
- Proven team player comfortable working in an international environment
- Willingness to travel internationally

What We Offer

- A commercially focused role with real impact on business growth
- Direct collaboration with well-established European manufacturers
- International exposure through global veterinary exhibitions and events
- Continuous technical and professional development
- Competitive base salary and compensation package linked to performance

Please send your CV with a photo to the following e-mail address.

titkarsag@dunavet.hu

DV | DUNAVET